

Upon the Lake Gennesaret,
Christ told Simon, "Let down your net."
They worked all night and caught nothing.
Suddenly, two boats were stuffing.
The catch filled both boats to the brink,
Almost enough for them to sink.

A tempest arose on the lake.
In the stern, He wasn't awake.
Smashing waves broke over the hull.
Endangered, they were almost full.
The disciples feared they'd be killed.
Christ said, "Peace," and the waters stilled.

As the King of heaven's own Son,
Jesus owed taxes to no one.
Exempt because "the Sons are free."
"Lest we offend... Go to the sea,"
Telling Peter, "Cast in a hook,"
Find a coin in the fish you took.

And upon the water's surface,
Appeared the One who lifts man's curses.
The disciples thought they saw a ghost!
Christ calmed them to the uttermost.
Peter also tried to tread the deep,
But total trust he did not keep.

In the country of Gadarenes:
A man like few have ever seen.
He told Christ, "My name is Legion."
He was possessed by many demons,
Too strong for any chain to bind.
Christ cast them out into the swine.

For twelve years, a woman endured
Blood-flow physicians never cured.
Their treatment only worsened
The health of this pathetic person.
She touched, thinking she was concealed;
From his garment, she was healed!

A man infirmed thirty-eight years
Would have thought it strange to hear,
"Do you want to be made well?"
At the pool, Christ had this to tell:
"Rise, take up your bed and walk."
And he did! It wasn't foolish talk.

"Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!"
Implored ten men who were leprous.
Going to the priests, they were healed.
One came back when that was revealed.
He gave thanks who was Samaritan.
Nine thankless forgot their return.

They tried to hush him, but he grew aggravated:
"Have mercy on me, Son of David!"
Bartimaeus, what would you like?
"Lord, that I may receive my sight!"
See now. "Your faith has made you well."
He saw, and God's praises did tell!

A twelve-year-old had fallen sick,
Her father begged Jesus come quick.
On the way, He healed another,
But by then, death she did suffer.
"Do not weep." "Little girl, arise."
At His word, she opened her eyes.

There were disciples sent from John,
Asking, "Are you the coming One?"
The deaf can hear and blind have sight,
The paralyzed can walk upright,
There are lepers cleansed and dead who live.
This is the answer you shall give.

"A MAN ATTESTED BY GOD"

Bryan Matthew Dockens, 2021

By miracle, God bore witness,
Declaring Christ's divine fitness.
The Father claimed: The Son is Mine
By ev'ry manifested sign.
To prove the pow'r we are under,
Jesus performed gift and wonder.

His disciples were first to see,
At a wedding in Galilee.
He transformed water into wine.
The host pronounced it was most fine.
In Cana, He displayed His glory,
And that begins to tell the story.

More than once, He took fish and bread,
And thousands and thousands were fed.
A few loaves and fish were the food
Sufficient for each multitude.
He gave so much more than enough,
Baskets filled with leftover stuff.
